Roy Lane Chosen Student Of The Month

This years Colonnade staff has recently added a new demension to student recognition for outstanding achievements by selecting a student of the month.

In a recent interview with Dean Carolyn Gettys, the idea was proposed and outlined.

The selection of a student-of-the-month is designed to recognize those individuals whose ideas suggestions achievements, awards or unselfish service contribute in amesurable way to individual and institutional fulfillment of Georgia's College's purpose.

GOALS:

To: encourage awareness of and respect for other individuals;
develop a sense of loyalty to and pride in one's self, and the group of individuals with whom we live and work;
enhance the individual's self-image;
enhance the group image; understand and appreciate the rewards of effort;
understand and appreciate the rewards of effort;
create a means of recognizing and appreciating the non-academic as well as a academic achievement andrewed;
recognize positive, constructive efforts, and thereby create a friendly atmosphere in which barriers of prejudice, jealousy, inappropriate competition, are broken down;
attempt to meet the human, basic needs of acceptance, recognition and achievement.

SUGGESTED CRITERIA FOR SELECTION:

A display of more than ordinary citizenship responsibility; the recipient of special awards, leadership position or appointments personal achievements resulting from special skills, talents, interest, or efforts; such as, drawing, painting, athletics, music, drama, dance, sewing, cooking, or photography creative endeavors, such as idealistic suggestions efforts or artistic works, that contribute to a safer, happier, more practical, more wholesome college environment.

Colonnade's first selection of student of the month for September goes to Roy Lane. Lane, a prominent young Baldwin County Democrat and President of the Student Body at Georgia College was one of three men elected to represent the Eighth Congressional District at the 1974 Conference on Democratic Organization in Kansas City, Mo., December 6-8.

Georgia will send 24 delegates from the 10 congressional districts to the conference which will be held to reorganize the Democratic Party, to draft a national charter and to consider how delegazs to the 1976 Democratic Convention will be selected.

Roy, a GC senior majoring in political science and the other two men chosen for the Kansas City Post was elected from eight delegates chosen to run at the Telfair County Courthouse Saturday, September 7.

Roy Lane

Roy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee Lane, Sr., of West Andrews St., was recently named as one of five delegates to the Mc Rae meeting from the 25th senatorial district represented by Culver Kidd.

The upcoming conference will also be attended by Georgia's governor, two Democratic Senators and nine Democratic Congressmen for the U.S. Congressmen for the U.S. Congress in Washington. Congradulations Roy!

The Colonnade encourages all organizations, dormitories, and individuals to submit nominations along with reasons why this person should be selected as student of the month. All nominations should be submitted to the Colonnade Box 1328 by the end of each month. The student of the month will be selected and recognized the first week of each month.

Graduate Testing In Business

The admission test for graduate study in business (ATGSB) will be offered on Nov. 2, Jan 25, March 22, and July 12, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Hoke, counselor of students at Georgia College.

The test is required of applicants to more than 370 graduate business schools. Georgia College is a pernjent test center.

Registration materials for the test and the ATGSB information bulletin may be obtained from Mrs. Hoke at GC or by writing to ATGSB, Educational Testing Service Box 966, Princeton, N N.J. 08540.

The regular ATGSB fee of $12 includes a score report sent to the candidate to his undergraduate placement officer and to as many as three graduate schools designated on the registration form. ATGSB registration forms and test fees must be received at ETS on or before the registration deadline announced in the bulletin. A $13 late fee is chaged for registration forms received after the deadline.

Candidates who cannot register in advance may wish to consider registering at the test center on the day of the test. Walk-in registration is permitted at all test centers in sufficient space and test materials are available after all normally registered candidates have been admitted. To be admitted as a walk-in registrant, a candidate must present a completed registration forma and a check or money order for the regular test fee plus an additional $10 service fee. The $3 late registration fee does not apply here.

Mayfair Madness

Slaving over a hot typewriter in a business course? Having problems with wonderful English class? And you think you got troubles? Enjoy as I relate tales from the Colonnade layout sessions.

6:00. None here. Business as usual.
6:30. Finally people show up. We get to work after a fifteen minute discussion on who gets to sit at the head of the table. Rulers are passed out from the drink mixing pitcher in the center of the mess over in Mayfair. Fluent cursing from the typists over bad handwriting.
7:30. The articles are gradually taking shape. All business stops as the Parcel Post trucks bring in our weekly supply of drinking material.

8:30. Most are now to drunk to write.

Beating Our System

Well, freshmen, now that you've gone through registration "legally" and have had a couple of weeks' time to recover, we can now feel safe in giving you a few helpful hints to speed your enlistment in the ranks of faithful students of Georgia College next quarter.

1. Pulling cards. There are several methods of pulling cards. All of these but one are considered illegal; but then who worries about the law anyway? One is to have a friend who has a last name that's closer to the start of registration than yours slip a card or four out for you. Another is to just brazenly go in without having your schedule sheet validated (horrors!) and take your cards at gunpoint. This may get you fast service but the SLA might be looking for someone like you anyway. The third is for pampered youngest children; relatives of royalty, visiting heads of state; in short, the very rich. Take your schedule sheet and your bankroll (the money is essential) and go to the computer center. If you find a friendly soul that is willing to take your money, they'll duplicate a set of cards and you don't have to worry any more about anything. A teacher always likes that one extra student.

2. Filling out forms. This is very simple. You gotta do it and there's no way around it. Sorry about that.

Try these and if you get away with it, see me. If not, I'll see you in jail sometime.

A Freshman's Views

As a freshman here at GC I've had to change a lot of my ways since most of us freshman arrived here about 3 weeks ago.

The first week was like a vacation, meeting new people, going to movies, learning where the best places to go were, seeing how many cute boys were around and learning the best places to shop.

But as time went on the vacation dream seemed to vanish. Talking to all hours in the night didn't set to well when I had to get up the next morning at 7:00 to get ready for class.

Walking in a sleepy daze to a class where the professor did a straight lecture for fifty minutes got me awake quick! I was so busy trying to write down what he was saying I didn't have time to think about how sleepy I was.

I also learned to share a bathroom with all the other girls on the hall, yell flush so no one would scald their behind, wait in line for an hour to make a three minute phone call and a variety of other things.

After learning all these things which were essential to living in my dorm I kept wondering how I could feel a part of GC.

I think the key to feeling a part is to get involved in activities around the school. It's a great way to get to know people and them to know you.

GI Home Loan

"The GI home loan program closed out fiscal year 1974 on a strong note despite limited availability of financing," stated A.W. Tate, Director of the VA Regional Office for the State of Georgia.

According to Mr. Tate, GI home loans in the State of Georgia for fiscal year 1974 totaled $295,653,434, while totals nationwide were 16 per cent below fiscal year 1973; however, with 306,200 home loans, it was considered a good year. Except for 1972 and 1973, fiscal year 1974 was the best since the peak years of the mid-1950s.

Nationwide, loans closed in June totaled 34,660 -- almost 27 per cent more than May and nearly 24 per cent more than June 1973.

Compared to June a year ago, appraisal requests climbed 10 per cent to 48,570, while applications for loans rose nearly 7 per cent -- to 32,310.

The 306,200 loans closed in fiscal year 1974 had a face value of $7.7 billion. Some 8.8 million loans, worth $106.3 billion, have been closed since the program's inception shortly after World War II.

Mr. Tate said "Va expects the housing situation to improve somewhat this fiscal year because of the boost in the maximum interest rate and the Administration's program for pumping approximately $10 billion into the housing market through the Government National Mortgage Association Tandem Plan. Under this plan, the government subsidizes interest rates above specified levels, lessening the interest burden on the buyer."

Know Your Student Body

A high school student who has been active in sports, on the school annual staff, and in Student Council will be one of two STAR students to enroll at Georgia College this month.

Enrolled at the college for the fall is Harriet Camille Jones, a graduate of Taylor High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy F.L. Jones of Rt. 2, Reynolds.

At Taylor, she was a member of the basketball team for four years and captain in her senior year, a member of the tennis team, and on the school annual staff.

She was also a member of the Future Business Leaders of America Club, the Future Homemakers of America Club, the 4-H Club, the Letterman Club, and Student Council.

Harriet, who hopes to enter the technical field after graduation from college, is also a member of the Reynolds Methodist Church and a pianist there and enjoys sports and reading.

The other STAR student who has enrolled at the college is Linda Kay Coarsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Coarsey of 304 Burum St., Pelham.

The Albany native is a graduate of Pelham High School who hopes to become a history teacher after college.

Linda was secretary and treasurer of the Beta Club at PHS, secretary of the Tri-Hi-Y Club, a drum majorette, and a member of the Pep Club.

She is a member of the First Baptist Church in Pelham and in its youth choir.

As a hobby, she enjoys listening to good music.

Letter To Senator Nunn

Dear Senator Nunn,

Sam, I'm not going to pay the 10 cents. It took a lot of soul searching, but you know I wrote both you and Senator Talmadge about us veteran's needing increases and Senator Talmadge sent me a letter right back. Your letter took 9 days and was marked POSTAGE DUE . . . 10 CENTS.

Now, Sam, the reason I wrote in the first place is because under the present V.A. payment system of the G.I. Bill I can hardly make ends meet, so I certainly can't add your postage bill to my budget.

In thinking it over, this just may not be your fault, so I don't want you to think I am holding you responsible. I mean the way the post office has been acting - anything is possible.

Why, just the other day I heard a fellow at the store say that at the big post office - all the mail was gathered together and thrown high up in the air - and when it came down, if most of it was addressed to, say, Oregon - it all went there and was rerouted.

Then, they go and keep on adding a few more cents for stamps. I'll tell you one thing, my mama is pretty upset at the post office. She baked me a special christmas cake. Oh, it arrived alright, but on Valentines day. You never saw such a frosting in all your life, like green and blue cement.

I am glad you have got the Veteran's bills in committee. That has me upset just a little though, I mean the Nixon thing has been in committee for ages. I hope the Vets fare better as far as action goes.

Keep up the good work, Sam, but I'm still not going to pay the 10 cents.

Colonials Conduct Fall Baseball Practice

By Mel Harris

Baseball at Georgia College got an early start this year as Coach Jim Peterson called the first practice of 1974-75 season Friday, Sept. 20.

There was a good turnout in number and the quality of the 20 ball players present was exceptional.

Coach Peterson urges any freshman and returning students interested in playing baseball, to contact him at the Athletic Department for information and equipment.

Peterson is extremely enthusiastic over the chances of his Colonials being a contender in the GIAC conference next year. With only six players returning from 1973, he feels that the addition of several junior college players and a host of talented newcomers will strengthen the 74 Colonials greatly, but adds that they will still be a young team.

There are four fall pre-season contests scheduled with Mercer University in the coming month, so be sure to come out and support the Colonial baseball team.

Soccer '74

By Mel Harris

The 1974 Georgia College Soccer season gets under way October 2nd with Jim Peterson making his debut as coach of the promising Colonials. Coach Peterson has most of the letterman off of last years 5-6 team returning and some talented new additions arriving.

In theory, Peterson feels he has the material for a winning season and possibly a shot at the title. He stated, "With this material and the way they are adapting to my defensive theory, there is no way we'll be out of a contest this year." Peterson is confident that his Colonials can take any team on their day.

Coach Peterson urges anyone still interested in soccer to contact him immediately. Let's support the Colonial soccer team in '74.

If I Could Take My Brush In Hand

If I could take my brush in hand
And paint the trees a restful cyan green,
With hues of blue above which span
Skies infinite, where silver clouds are seen,
And give the earth a touch of warmth
With reds of Cadmium and Alizarin,
Then everything would look as good
First wanted it when first he drew His plan.
If I could take my life in hand
And put a smile on every person's face,
And know that, in my heart, I can
Love everybody in the human race,
And carry tubes of love with me,
And put on into every person's hand,
Then everything would be as God
Still wants it, cause there's still hope for His Plan.

The End

Once, yes once upon a time,
I saw a couple, standing at each other in the street,
I didn't really know what was going on,
until I saw a little tear drop in her eye.
They were saying good-bye with one last kiss,
As they turned and walked their separate ways,
they didn't think of all the good moments
they had together, they only thought that their worlds were too different to join . . .

Call Of The Stars

The night sits quietly with ease upon the pine-straw laden hill, and darkness seeps among the trees
as valleys with sweet blackness fill.
But somewhere, in some hidden place,
a soul, detached from beauty's night, stands suffering upon the face of Earth's decay, an ugly sight

Those early days were marked with stains of bloody zip-top cola rings, and nauseating stomach pains,
and freshly-flowing, cutting stings.
The shadows weren't so lovely there - a night's adventure marked with fear -
The light, a Horrid, torrid glare was far from love's lights sparkling here.

But in the midst of one bad night,
a strange wind whispered from the east, and carried one soul on a flight with prophesied a world of peace.
The stars seemed strangely clear that night;
They sparkled clean through nightmare's sheet,
and lead this soul away from fright,
to some place infinitely sweet.

So now, when night call seems detached,
and pain flows through the suffering soul,
the fresh wounds still can be re-patched the broken will can be made whole for since that magic midnight's ride,
The stars are calling . . . calling soon to when the soul can come untied and be one with the stars and moon.

If survival is truly for the fittest,
How did you survive?
You seem so sweet and vulnerable.
HJarsness seems to have passed you by
I hate to see you when you're hurt.
You deserve the best.
The best of treatment, friends, and life,
Enjoyment, love, and jest.

Yet problems plague my beloved friend
And the smallest seem to grow
To proportions of such monument
And on your face they show.

The worries and the troubled frowns
Should never pass your brow
I wish somehow I could erase
The problems you face now.

For if I could, I'd throw my all;
All my strength and wit,
To one main goal and strive for that,
To remove each worry bit by bit.

Should I fake a laugh
Should I speak to him

If only he'd laugh, smile, or wink sometime
Or just pass and say "hi"
If only I had a reason for his

I'd feel happy if only that much
I could understand.

Time is drawing short
only a week to pass before the port doors close could we have a chance, at last

Could we find each other?
Could we have a talk

Drummers Strike Again!

By Henry Z. Zidwell

Two fortunate GC students will soon march to the rhythm of $498.00 each due to the latest efforts of the Georgia College Drummer's Club. This scholarship will pay the full tuition and fees of two students one from each of the following categories: Athletics and cultural interests (the latter category encompasses art and music mainly.)

Candidates are nominated by the appropriate department heads, largely on the basis of financial need, a problem that too often prevents able individuals from attaining their full potentials. The bulk of the funds which make such efforts possible are supplied by McDonald's in its corporate contribution to the program's main contributor who in fact donated $1,571.00 to the program last year. The various individuals who comprise the Drummers are also largely responsible for this opportunity for deserving students.

Although this scholarship is a significant contribution of the Drummers to Georgia College students, it is not the only effort that has been made by that organization in the interest of our student body. The $250.00 which was donated last year to the Georgia College choir for its European tour, the formation of the Colonial Hall of Fame, which honors academic, cultural, athletic, and political achievements, and three $50 purchase awards to student artists during the Drummer sponsored art contest last year are but three such examples. In view of these and other examples it is evident that the aid from the GC Drummers is directed to widely diversified areas of student life.

The express purpose of the Georgia College Drummers Club is to provide aid for GC students . . . to "Drum up support for the Colonials", to use their slogan.

Membership is open to any student, faculty member, or other individuals. Further information may be obtained from Dr. Whipple, Dr. Poindexter, Mr. Childers, Dr. Pitman, Ms. Mayberry, or Mr. Charles Beard, to name a few. Any support would be greatly appreciated.

The Drummers have some ambitious plans for the future. In fact, a goal of 30 full scholarships, 15 in each category, was expressed by Drummer's president, Charles Beard. "But not by next year," he said. The important thing is, however, that the Drummers are helping people out here and now. Good luck Drummers, we get the beat.

Have news on what your group is doing? Share it with others! Submit typed articles to Colonnade Box 1328. Deadline for information is Tuesday 5:00 p.m.

Sigma Alpha Iota

Sigma Alpha Iota, international professional music fraternity for women, was organized in 1903 "to form chapters of music students and musicians who shall by their influence and their musical interest uphold the highest ideals of a music education."

SAI is responsible for many successful programs which give support and encouragement to musicians and their endeavors. The SAI Foundation awards scholarships and particularly encourages the efforts of the American composer. The International Music Fund Program supports music education in the field of music therapy and aids in production of music for the blind and partially blind.

Though membership in SAI is limited to the music major, each college student can assist in our worthwhile goals by support of the local chapter's efforts and by their attendance of scheduled musical events, especially the student recitals.

Join with Sigma Alpha Iota to "Study and practice the goodness of life, the beauty of art, and the meaning of music."

New Year For Student Senate

The Senate of the College Government Association will begin its fall session soon. As president of the Senate for one quarter, I must confess that the production of meaningful legislation was not up to the expectations I had. However, as I review the work of my predecessors, it seems that the Spring session was not bad at all. There were bills changing slack methods of operation in College Government, as well as some very far-reaching resolutions, aimed at many trouble spots that many students run into. Overall, it seemed that several Senators were involved in their work. But these are new elections and some new faces no doubt will take their places in the meeting room. Hopefully, all will not simply drag through their teams, just to satisfy their motivation to become a Senator, whatever it may be. Student Gov't., or college Gov't., by its design, is very limited in what it can produce; limited basically to the ideas of the administration that allowed it to evolve in the first place. This cannot be circumvented. However, realistic goals, such as those of teacher evaluation, realistic meal plans, open dorm, etc., can be achieved with some coordinated effort on the part of just a few students. The Senate is not an organization that has any definite solutions as yet to any definite problems. However, hopefully, it will become your sounding board of opinion. That is if you take the time to find out who your representative is, and let him know what's happening.

Pike News

The Theta Gamma Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha would like to express our appreciation to all who joined us in our annual "Welcome Back to Georgia College" party. We hope all students enjoyed the excitement as much as we enjoyed sponsoring the party for them.

Throughout the year the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity will have many functions for Georgia College students. We invite all students to attend and help them generate an ardent nobility between all students. We would also like to offer any assistance or service in bettering the life of Georgias College through social and academic upheaval.

The Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity offers more than any club, more than any group; the Theta Gamma Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha offers service, friendship and BROTHERHOOD. Any male interested in the action of this fraternity should contact any Pike.

Phi Delta Rush Is On

On September 15th Phi Delta Theta's brothers poured back onto campus to kick off the 1974-75 fraternity year. September 16th all the fraternities had a bowl of spiked punch while the interested parties, or interested in parties, signed up at the various rush tables. Phi Delta had a good turnout in the 12 persons signing for the party on Saturday, September 21. This included freshmen and transfers. The party was held at the Williams' lake lodge, where there was skiing, hamburger eating, the total consumption of a keg of beer, and then all departed to the dance on campus. After the dance, those who had survived came back for more party, singing, and finishing off leftover hamburgers.

The next two weeks will be busy ones indeed for Phi Delta Theta. We have another rush party this Friday (tonight) honoring, guess who? The rushees! If you signed up at our rush table Tuesday or if you contact a Phi Delta before the party, we'll be glad to have you. Next week is the last week of rush before we issue bids.

Now wouldn't it be just great to be issued a bid from Phi Delta Theta? If you are interested in an up-and-coming, creative, and productive fraternity, try Phi Delta Theta.

Playing in Russell, Oct. 20 8:00 p.m. free admission.

Erich Von Daniken To Speak Here

Erich von Daniken is a 38 year old Swiss native who, with the publication of three books, has become an international phenomenon caught up in a whirlwind of controversy. Each of the books - Chariots of the Gods?, Gods from Outer Space and the recent Gold of the Gods - deals with his theories that the earth was visited in ancient times by astronauts from outer space who deposited the seeds that grew into civilization as it exists today. They departed, but not without leaving what von Daniken feels is stunning evidence of their presence.

Von Daniken's books, published in the late 60's in Europe and in the early 70's in the U.S., have been translated into 32 foreign languages (even Chinese) and reportedly have sold more than 28 million copies in all editions. An NBC-TV aired film, based on the first two books and entitled "In Search of Ancient Astronauts", received one of the highest viewerships of the season when it was shown last winter, and sent Chariots of the Gods? soaring to the top of paperback bestseller lists across the nation. The TV special created the same excitement in Canada and Australia. Since that time Chariots of the Gods? has ranked in the top ten of the "Chronicle of Higher Education's What They're Reading on Campus" listings. It has been the No. 1 paperback bestseller on the N.Y. Times list for five consecutive months, with Gods from Outer Space also listed in the top five bestsellers simultaneously.

With characteristic zeal and imagination, von Daniken researched age-old materials - writings of Biblical prophets, books of Tibetan lamas, stone relics of the Mayas and Incas, pyramids of Egypt, the Stonehenge, sculpture of Easter Island, cave drawings in North Africa and unusual markings in Japan, Italy, Australia and scores of phenomena in other parts of the world. He reinterprets much of this phenomena in light of technological advancement and uses these findings to support his theories. Von Daniken illustrates his lectures with slides of these archeological legacies.

One of the most fascinating sources von Daniken turns to for support of his theories is the Biblical prophet Ezekiel. The author contends that the fiery chariots Ezekiel wrote about were, in reality, the spacecrafts of ancient astronauts.

Although admittedly the target of scorn and ridicule from traditional archeologists, von Daniken does have support from some members of the scientific community, including NASA engineer Josef F. Blumrich who also believes that Ezekiel, in his own unsophisticated language, provides a detailed description of the spacecraft with indications of land legs and structural detail. Aspects of von Daniken's research have also been verified by Dr. Karl Kuhlberg of Aachen University and Dr. Herman Oberth, the father of the rocket.

Erich von Daniken to appear at Georgia College, Milledgeville, Georgia, on Wednesday, October 16, in Russell Auditorium beginning at 8:00 p.m.

The public is invited with no admission charge.

The first twenty-five persons will receive a copy of Mr. von Daniken's most recent book Gold of the Gods.

Community Concert

Milledgeville Community Concert ticket holders and Georgia College students are in for a particularly exciting presentation at 8:00 p.m. on October 7, 1974 when Javier de Leon's production "Carnival de Mexico" is presented in Russell Auditorium on the Georgia College campus. As Mexico's leading producer of dance and musical attractions, and as a highly successful director, de Leon's theatrical expertise has already brought unusual entertainment to countless concert goers of America with his "Fiesta Mexicana" programs. "Carnival de Mexico" promises even more variety and theatrical excitement than its predecessor. Our neighbors to the South love to celebrate all manner of holidays in a spirit of Mardi Gras. There are occasions for festivities throughout the year, and they are as varied as the land itself - influenced photography, plains to mountains, and by the cultural traditions of the ancient Mayan and Aztec Indians, of Spain and of France.

For his new production Javier de Leon has engaged stars and special artists who have not yet appeared in the States. Mericia Zuniga is a soprano of extraordinary gifts whose style in interpreting the music of her country has made her a popular favorite there. Celia and Los Alvarado, who are among Mexico's most popular artists, are bringing stunning examples of their songs, dances and instrumental music. Also highlighting the performance will be the Escamilla Brothers, show-stopping, rope twirling champions who have been acclaimed time and time again in their native land.

The Mariachi "Embajadores" (the orchestra of Aurelio Rodriguez) delighted audiences of "Fiesta Mexicana" and their re-engagement for "Carnival de Mexico" was a foregone conclusion. These musicians, singers and dancers will evoke the fun spirit of the many regions of Mexico. In staging their numbers, Javier de Leon has been assisted by guest choreographer Heliodoro Vengeas. The wildly varied and colorful costumes are theatricalized versions based on authentic Mexican designs. The creative artists responsible for these are Maria Pueblito, Jose Luis Murtado and Jose Gonzalez de Leon.

Considering the outstanding talents involved, "Carnival de Mexico" will offer the audience a festive package of never to be forgotten entertainment.

Atlanta Symphony

The 86 players of the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra will be split into two chamber-size orchestras to perform concerts the same evening, Monday, October 7, 8:30 p.m., in two Georgia cities, in Gainesville at Brenau College and Toccoa in the Rotunda of the Georgia Baptist Assembly.

The Atlanta Symphony Concert Orchestra, a 56-player ensemble, will perform in Gainesville under the direction of Associate Conductor Michael Palmer. The program includes Haydn's Symphony No. 104, "London," Milhaud's Suite Francaise and Beethoven's Symphony No. 5.

The Atlanta Symphony Chamber Orchestra, a 30-player ensemble, will perform in Toccoa under the direction of Conducting Assistant Alan Balter. The program includes Vivaldi's Bassoon Concerto, featuring Carl Nitchie, principal bassoon; Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll," Respighi's The Birds; Mozart's Divertimento in D major for Oboe, Two Horns and Strings and Bartok's Roumanian Folk Dances.

October Is Fire Prevention Month

Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter and Comptroller General Johnnie L. Caldwell have proclaimed October as Georgia Fire Prevention Month at a ceremony held at the State Capitol.

The ceremony officially marks the kick-off for the second annual Georgia Fire Prevention Month campaign, sponsored by the State Fire Marshal's Office and the Insurance Information Institute and observed in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12.

Kick-off activities began with the signing of proclamations by the governor and the comptroller general, officially designating October as Fire Prevention Month.

Ceremonies continued a public gathering of Atlanta firemen, school children, and onlookers as Carter and Caldwell spoke briefly to the crowd.

The two state officials also publicly honored the Georgia Firemen's Association Rookie of the Year, Bobby Wood of Norcross, and lauded the services of Georgia's fire fighters.

In comments about the fire prevention campaign, Caldwell called for the participation of all Georgians.

"The fire service personnel of this state are doing a tremendous job," Caldwell said. "But the most effective means of fighting fires is by preventing them altogether."

"To make this Georgia Fire Prevention Month campaign successful, we will need an effort on the part of concerned citizens all over the state."

Gov. Carter commended Caldwell, the fire service personnel, and the insurance industry for the fire prevention program. "The need for adequate fire prevention precautions is evident by the thousands of fire-related deaths in the United States each year," he said.

"State Safety Fire Commissioner Johnnie Caldwell and the Insurance Information Institute have developed a fine program to inform the people of Georgia of fire and the need for fire prevention."

As part of the Georgia Fire Prevention campaign, fire safety information will be distributed through the news media and public service broadcasts, a state-wide fire prevention poster contest in the elementary schools, and information kits distributed to schools, fire departments, and insurance companies.

Many local fire departments and insurance companies are carrying on the campaign at a local level by giving talks, making local proclamations, and working with the school poster contests.

Bargain Hunting In One Easy Lesson

Never, simply never, go to a garage sale. I made that mistake last weekend and it cost me a fortune, plus I didn't get what I was looking for.

First off, those who have garage sales simply clean out everything they don't want and put a higher price tag on their items than you could buy in a store.

Second, they are very descriptive in what they sell—which in turn makes the buyer think he is getting something he is really not.

For example, I was offered a broom for six dollars. The broom had all of five pieces of straw. I questioned the price and was told the worth of the handle. Unbreakable, I was told. My fiance bought the dam think and the first time she used it the handle split. . . but we still have five pieces of straw.

Then there was this picture frame. It was really large. I mean gigantic. It was listed at $20. which my fiance plunked down. I asked her what in the world we would ever use the thing for. She replied she didn't know but someday something would come along that needed a big frame.

To top it off, "we" bought a picture of some general on a horse from the war of 1812. I say "we" because I paid the money for it. All of $16. The seller stated that the picture was painted long ago. The Sears tag on the back said 1972.

By the way, the original intent of the "bargain hunting" was to see if any of the garage sales included a tent for camping. Nobody had a tent but whatever they did have we seemed to have bought—and all of it will wind up in the garage.

I'll announce in the future when our garage sale will be. I have a five straw broom for sale, a picture frame that you could house New York City in, and a picture of that great general of 1812, General Messup. I will sell it all as a unit for 5 bucks.

Faulkner Symposium

"Faulkner, 50 years after The Marble Faun" is the theme of a symposium scheduled Oct. 17-19 at The University of Alabama Continuing Education Center.

The program marks the 50th anniversary of the publication of William Faulkner's first works, "The Marble Faun," a small volume of poetry which began his literary career.

The noted Mississippi author died in 1962. His works included "The Sound and the Fury," "Sanctuary," "As I Lay Dying," and "Absalom! Absalom!"

Program participants include Richard Adams of Tulane University, Joseph Blotner of the University of Michigan, Cleanth Brooks of Yale University, James Meriwether of the University of South Carolina, Sally Page of Meredith College, Louis D. Rubin Jr. of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Lewis Simpson of Louisiana State University and Floyd Watkins of Emory University.

Program topics include Faulkner: The European Roots; William Faulkner and W.B. Yeats: Parallels and Affinities; Faulkner: The Relationship of the Writer to His Work; Faulkner and Anderson: A Further Consideration; Faulkner's Sense of the Sacred; You Would Have to be Born There: William Faulkner and the South; Faulkner and the Legend of the Artist; and Habet: Faulkner and the Ownership of Property.

Registration for the symposium is $10. Students may register for $5. Information may be obtained by contacting C.E. Adams, director of Conference Activities, Box 2967, University of Alabama 35486.

Free Chooses Free Enterprise

If he didn't have the proper product, Ross Free, a Milledgeville merchant with a penchant for bicycles, might be considered a bit foolhardy for embarking on a business venture in these days of declining production, a sagging economy, and dropping Dow-Jones averages.

But Free is bullish about America and confident enough in his wares to begin a new business in an era when business failures are the rule rather than the exception.

Free, a recent Georgia College history graduate, decided to sell and service bicycles after finding that the job market held slim pickings for someone just out of college and on the basis of a marketing survey made in a graduate marketing course at GC that indicated that a bike shop would be successful in Milledgeville.

Before opening his bike emporium, he pursued several job offers but found nothing he really wanted. This situation and the optimistic marketing report settled him in his opinion to go into business for himself.

"I went into this with trepidation," he said recently, adding, "And I know that the risk of failure is great."

Free borrowed the money to start his business from his father in Macon, who looks on the loan as a straight business deal albeit he is charging his son a lower rates of interest than the banks might.

Once he decided to go out on his own, Free visited a Macon bike dealer for information about a distributorship, learned of a Jacksonville, Fla. wholesaler, and made contact.

Free's shop, the Central Georgia Cyclery, is a protected dealership that handles five different brands of bikes (Vista, Kabuki, Bottecchia, Echo and Fuji) and the Trailmate adult tricycle. Free began his business with a $4,200 inventory that included 35 bikes, a truing stand, a repair stand, special tools for repairing bikes, and spare parts.

His inventory is currently worth $9,000. There are now 60 bikes in his 2,800-square foot show room and repair facility, and there are 100 bikes on order for the Christmas trade. Since opening his shop, Free has added water skis and ski equipment to his line.

Free sells his bikes for as low as $90 and as high as $500.

El Circulo Espanol will hold its first meeting of the quarter on Monday, October 14, at 8:00 p.m. We will meet in the Foreign Language Building.

All Georgia College students and faculty who have an interest in Spanish and/or are enrolled in Spanish courses are invited to attend the meeting and to become members.

Phi Mu Pledges 4 New Sisters

During the week of September 9, Phi Mu participated in "rush," at Georgia College. After 4 days of fun and entertainment, Phi Mu pledged four new girls. They are Melody Dillworth, Jan Foskey, Donna Odom, and Ellen Simpson.

Melody is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson Dillworth of Royston, Georgia. She is a freshman at Georgia College.

Jan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foskey of Swainsboro, Georgia. She is a member of the Mixed Chorus, the Women's Chorale, and the Honor Society. She was nominated for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," and is now the reigning Miss Georgia College. Jan is a senior majoring in Special Education.

Donna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Odom of Campton, Georgia. She is a freshman majoring in Nursing.

Ellen is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William C. Simpson of Milledgeville, Georgia. She is a member of the Spectrum staff and the Baptist Student Union. Ellen is a freshman majoring in Special Education.

A pledging ceremony took place Sun., September 22, at the home of Mrs. Rose Baugh, Faculty Advisor. Refreshments were served followed by the ceremony. These new pledges are all outstanding young women and Phi Mu is proud to receive them into her sisterhood.

Nat'l Teacher Exams Slated For GC

Less than two weeks remain for prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teacher Examinations at Georgia College on Nov. 9, to submit their registrations for these tests to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J., Elizabeth Hoke, counselor of students announced today.

Registrations for the examinations must be forwarded so as to reach the Princeton Office not later than October 17.

The examinations will be given in Herty Hall at the college.

Information bulletins describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained from the GC graduate office or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

At the one-day test session a candidate may take the common examinations, which include tests in professional education and general education, and one of the twenty-eight area examinations which are designed to evaluate his understanding of the subject matter and methods applicable to the area he may be assigned to teach.

Each candidate will receive an admission ticket advising him of the exact location of the center to which he should report.

Candidates for the common examinations will report at 8:30 a.m. on Nov. 9, and should finish at approximately 12:30 p.m.

Candidates for the area examinations will report at 1:30 p.m. and should finish at approximately 4:15 p.m., according to the time schedule for these examinations which has been set up by Educational Testing Service.

UFologist Sighted At GC

Erich von Daniken, a Swiss author who has written three books dealing with his theories that Earth was visited in ancient times by astronauts from outer space, will speak at Georgia College on Wednesday, October 16, at 8 p.m.

Von Daniken's lecture will be free and open to the public.

His three books on the subject of early astronauts—Chariots of the Gods, Gods from Outer Space, and Gold of the Gods—have become the center of considerable controversy and have been translated into 32 foreign languages. More than 28 million copies of his three books have been sold.

A film entitled "In Search of Ancient Astronauts" based on von Daniken's first two books was telecast on NBC last winter and received one of the highest viewerships of the season. As a result of the film, his first book, Chariot of the Gods, became a top paperback ranking at the top on the N.Y. Times list for five consecutive months.

To back up his writings, Von Daniken has researched with zeal and imagination a variety of materials including the writings of Biblical prophets, books of Tibetan lamas, stone relics of the Mayas and Incas, the pyramids of Egypt, the Stonehenge in England, sculpture on Easter Island in the South Pacific, cave drawings in North Africa, and unusual markings in Japan, Australia and Italy.

In his books, he reinterprets much of this phenomena in light of technological advancement and uses these findings to support his theories. One of the most fascinating sources von Daniken turns to for support of his theories is the Biblical prophet Ezekiel who wrote about fiery chariots that von Daniken says were in reality spaceships of ancient astronauts.

Although admittedly the target of scorn and ridicule from traditional archeologists, von Daniken does have support from some members of the scientific community, including NASA engineer Josef F. Blumrich who also believes that Ezekiel, in his own unsophisticated language, provides a detailed description of the spacecraft with indication of land legs and structural detail. Aspects of von Daniken's research have also been verified by Dr. Karl Kuhlberg of Aachen University and Dr. Herman Oberth, the father of the rocket.

Von Daniken's lecture will be held in Russell Auditorium.

AED, Ready For Delivery Rules Of The Roost

by Kathy Thomas

Interested in a medical career? If so, the founders of the future Georgia College chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, a proposed pre-med fraternity, are interested in you. Although the organization is still in its evolutionary stages (the constitution of the proposed fraternity itself must be in existence for two years in order to become a full-fledged chapter of AED) the people responsible for its foundation hope to actualize certain goals in the near future. Among such goals are the stimulation of high academic achievement in pre-med fields, the promotion of contacts between pre-med students and those who are already established in medical colleges.

Free Chooses

he notes, "that a bike is only for children. Actually it's more than that, it's a means of getting from place to place quickly and inexpensively and an excellent means of transportation for adults as well as children and youth."

Free also has had to battle cheaper outlets for bikes in town.

"Until recently," he points out, "anyone who wanted to buy a bike in Milledgeville had to go to a department store, a discount store, or an auto supply store where bikes are sold generally in cartons—unassembled—and without much thought to service."

Bikes sold through these outlets are usually cheaply made, according to Free. Their frames "fatigue" easily and sometimes fail to pass performance test criteria, he says.

Stores selling bikes unassembled now may soon have to put them together in the future, us Free, because of a bill pending in the U.S. House of Representatives that will require all bikes to be delivered to customers assembled (and not in crates). The bill is a result of a large number of accidents involving bikes that had not been put together properly, causing injury and sometimes death.

Free and his mechanic, Buddy Warren, a GC student from Pocatigo in North Georgia (Free calls Warren his most valuable asset in the business) pride themselves on their personal service to their customers—fitting the customer to the different size frames available (wheel sizes are not the only unit of measurement in buying a bike), putting bikes together at no cost to the customer instead of selling them in cardboard boxes, and providing free gear and brake adjustments after the sale.

Free and Warren also instruct customers in how to properly ride a bike and keep records of serial numbers of bikes sold at the shop for recovery purposes.

Bikes sold at the Central Georgia Cyclery are warranted and work is guaranteed, Free says, another plus for the customer.

Recently, in front of the Milledgeville post office, Free spotted a bike he had sold that was being ridden by someone he felt was not an authorized rider. Turning his car around, Free pursued the rider, stopped him, discovered that the bike was stolen, and made arrangements to have the bike returned to the proper owner.

Free plans to attend a bike show in Miami in January to learn more about the business and hopes to start a bike club in the area soon.

Although the present is not perhaps the best time to begin a new business, Free is optimistic about his future, particularly as he remembers that there were more bikes sold over the past three years than automobiles.

On the wall behind his desk is a sign that perhaps better expresses his feelings than words. Reads the sign, "Business is like riding a bicycle. You keep moving or you fall down."

Among such goals are the stimulation of high academic achievement in pre-med fields, the promotion of contacts between pre-med students and those who are already established in medical colleges, aid the pre-med student in entering medical college, and finally, encouraging continuing interest in medically related fields in order to counteract possibility of drop outs because of increased demands on pre-med students. Actually, the number of such students on the GC campus has increased substantially in recent years, as the proportion of pre-med students who enter medical college has also increased. Therefore, the proposed AED chapter is to meet a need which has made itself quite evident.

Since the future fraternity will eventually become a satellite of the big AED itself, the rules and requirements concerning membership are being based on those of the main organization. In order to be a member, one must of course be pursuing a major toward a medical career, and have an accumulative average of 2.7 or more, with a science average of at least 2.9. One half of the organization must be comprised of actual pre-med students, those who intend to become medical doctors. The rest of the members may be following some medically related field: pre-dentistry, and pre-vet are good examples.

Although the establishment of the Georgia College AED chapter is still underway, several important events concerning its founders and future members have already taken place, or have been planned for the future. Dr. Aliff, the group's faculty sponsor and an alumnus of AED himself, reports that an address entitled "Practice of Medicine: 1974" has already been attended by the members, and that various speakers representing many diversified medically related areas are being considered.

Anyone interested in further information concerning Georgia College's future Alpha Epsilon Delta chapter may contact Dr. Aliff of the Biology department or Dr. Vincent in the Chemistry department.

Honor Students Are On The Ball

Among the various activities are preparations which usher in the new academic year is the selection of students who are to participate in the Georgia College Honors Program. The main purpose of the honors program is to allow capable students to obtain benefits and achieve goals which could possibly not be available in normal classes to get the most out of their education in other words. Small classes, individual attention, and encouragement of independent thought and study are emphasized. Through such methods, the students in question (this year, over 30 have been selected) are given the opportunity to discover and develop their full potentials.

The program itself, now in its fourth year, consists of three phases. The completion of which constitutes the completion of the entire program. These phases are:

1. Satisfactory completion (B or better) of an Honors course.
2. Participation in a seminar and.
3. An independent study phase.

To date, one student, Lynn Wilcox, has so completed the program. This year, honor classes will be offered in English, History, Biology, Political Science, and Sociology. There will be two interdepartmental seminars, (one in Social Science which is to be headed by Dr. McHale and one in Humanities which will be under the supervision of Dr. Poin-dexter) in addition to the opportunity to hear several scheduled speakers, the first

Are Dormitory Regulations too strict this year? Many people feel that they are, but by the end of this article maybe you can understand why they're being so strictly enforced.

Anyone caught going out of the side doors after they have been closed will be asked to leave promptly! You may enter only by the front door of the dorm after the side doors have been closed. Violation of this regulation may end in suspension.

The reason for this regulation is to insure the safety of all residents of the dorm. There have been a few breaks in some of the dorms because of side doors being propped open so someone could get back in after curfew. This leaves the door open for anyone to enter. Would you feel safe knowing that a door was propped open and someone harmful might come through it to your room?

Another regulation that is being enforced this year is the drinking regulation. Alcoholic beverages are allowed in the room but you are not to be in the halls with it when entering the dorm for the night, you are supposed to be able to sign yourself in and are not to be boisterous in the halls. Think how you would feel if while you were trying to study someone who had been drinking was yelling and screaming down the halls. Try to be considerate of people and they'll be considerate of you.

Included with the regulations this year there are new privileges for freshmen. Freshmen are now allowed to have refrigerators in their rooms, we have the same curfew as other women residents: 12 midnight on weekdays, and 2:00 a.m. on weekends. Freshmen can also get unrestricted curfews second quarter.

So you can see even though we have a few regulations we also have a lot of privileges that former students never had.

Letter To The Students

The Georgia College yearbook staff wishes to include a letters section in this year's SPECTRUM. Comments on any relevant subject from the students, faculty, administrators, and other interested persons in the college community will be welcomed.

This is the first time such a section has been included in the SPECTRUM, and it is our hope that all persons involved with Georgia College will use this opportunity to voice their criticisms and opinions.

All letters should be typed if possible and limited to about 300 words. We reserve the right to edit letters for libel and length. Names will be withheld only in unusual circumstances.

Letters will not be accepted for publication after Monday, November 11. Send all letters to SPECTRUM, P.O. Box 3129.

Sincerely,
Cecil Simpkins

Coach Robinson, Coach Golden, and Coach Martin ask that anyone interested in participating in inter-collegiate basketball, volleyball, or gymnastics to contact them immediately at the Athletic Building.

Coach Peterson has announced that there will be a fall practice baseball game held with Mercer University this Wednesday, October 16, at the Athletic complex at 2:00 p.m.

Intramural Football

The Chargers and Kappa Sigma lead the pack with 2-0 records after the first two days of action in intramural football. The play has been relatively clean and the hitting pretty good thus far. The games have been quite exciting and, with only a couple of exceptions, they have all gone right down to the wire. The rules for football this year include: two 20 minute halves, six-man teams and played officials for all games. There are seven games scheduled for each team with the team totaling the best record being awarded the first place points. In the case of a tie, a play-off game or games will be held to decide a winner. Schedules and rules for competition are available in Dr. Staple's office. Monday's and Tuesday's results:

Monday, October 7

Kappa Sigma-8, Phi Delta Theta-13; Chargers-16, Dirty 1/2 Dozen-12; Jays-18, Phi Kappa Alpha-8.

Tuesday, October 8

Pi Kappa Alpha-34, Phi Delta Theta-0; Chargers-28, Jays-12; Kappa Sigma-15; Wild Bunch-12.

Cheerleaders Chosen

Four new cheerleaders have been added to the ranks of the Georgia College Cheerleaders. They are:
Fran Moore-Warner Robins, Georgia; Gwen Hambrick-Folkston, Georgia; Lynn Frederick-Fort Valley, Georgia; Kathy Watkins-Auburn, Alabama.

There were nine candidates for the four openings. Each of the girls underwent six days training, and the final selection was made by a panel of six judges in no way affiliated with Georgia College. Congratulations to you all!

Colonials Defeated

A porous defense plagued the Colonials all afternoon as their offense failed to offset a barrage of eight goals by Toccoa Falls, leading to an 8-1 loss in their home opener.

After a horrendous first half, which left Georgia College trailing 6-1, the Colonial defense stiffened and a sluggish offense which hardly managed a decent shot the first half looked considerably stronger as they barely missed several shots, twice hitting the cross bars. Herbie Brown scored the lone goal for Georgia College.

The Colonials, 0-1, play four more games at home with contests at the athletic complex scheduled for October 12 (Berry) and October 15 (Oglethorpe) just ahead. Let's get out and support our team.

Book Shortage

The Milledgeville Gazette published recently an article concerning a book shortage on the Georgia College campus. The problem at hand will hinder many of G.C.'s intellectuals from acquiring a copy of Tom, Dick, Sally, and Jane. The beloved character, Spot, will not be seen streaking across the lawn with that pantywaist Dick yelling, "See Spot run. Run Spot, run." Did you realize Dick has never realized why Spot keeps running away from him? Well, I was fortunate enough to receive the next sequel to Tom, Dick, Sally, and Jane, which I am afraid to say will not be published in bulk form for all the thousands of avid readers because of the book shortage. Do not be dismayed. I will tell you the reason why Spot is on the run. Spot is in heat, and Dick wants her to play with the nice male German Shepherd next door. I believe Spot has a reason to run, but Spot's perverted master can just stand there exclaiming, "See Spot run. Run Spot, run." You would run too, if you had a German Shepherd closing in behind you.

The professors are planning a strike because of this trivial book shortage. They will be unable to assign books for their course. This has the professors very distressed, because the students will have to rely on the professors' notes. Many professors conduct a class on the old adage, "A book a week keeps Johnny's mind nice and neat." Actually, the truth of the matter is, "A book a week keeps Johnny restless from no sleep."

Please do not rush to the bookstore to buy any available books. This crisis will give us a chance to use something which may have been stagnant for too long . . . our minds.

Are you one of those poor unfortunate souls who swelter their lives away under the blistering rays of the mighty "sun god", only to find a tan is the farthest thing away from what you got from it? Do you freckle like a kid or burn so bad that people think you're always blushing? If this describes your predicament, relax! The situation is well under control!

Recent experiments at Georgia College in the Biology department have shown significant results in the search for the secret to tan skin.

Dr. Harriett Whipple and Dr. David Staszak, working together with the help of several students in the department, came across the answer by accident after long hours of examining specimens bountiful with the sunshine miracle. Whipple specialized in observing male specimens while Staszak spent long hours watching the bikini clad female. When asked just what the secret to tan s epidermis is, the two declined to discuss their findings. "We feel more study must be done before disclosure is made to the public," explained Staszak, who was eager to return to observation.

Much credit is to go to Drs. Whipple and Staszak for their dedication in working to find the answer to this intriguing problem. Should you wonder why the two spent so much time at pool-side and the beach, it is because they put their work before pleasure. Good job! Georgia College needs more professors like you.

You Call This Work?

By Mark Smith & Suellen Griggs

Last weekend four members of our intrepid staff journeyed to the fair city of Atlanta to the Georgia College Press Association State Convention. If it had been a perfect trip, there wouldn't be anything to write about. And since this is not the end of the article, obviously it was not a perfect trip. Read on . . .

Off to a flying start; thirty minutes late. Hangovers I suppose. In fact, that's almost certain since they had a flat tire next to the Butcher Shop. Three policemen stopped and helped them. The treads were showing in the tire. "Well, didn't you check your tires before you left?" Answer "They weren't flat!!" How charming.

They (Suellen Griggs, Cathy Griggs, Patty Steen, Kathy Thomas) had 15 minutes to dress after trying on an entire wardrobe. Plain Impossible? Yes. They were late again. But this time everyone was. (The president locked his keys in the art dept. of Emory and couldn't get to his suitcase.) The banquet was a success, nevertheless. So few were there, one attendant was mistaken for the maitre'd. Par for the course.

It turned out he was just a student at Augusta College from Washington DC. (I knew the customs of the north and south were different but . . .)

The following morning after 3 hours of sleep the four managed to locate Georgia State for the meetings of the day. The conference consisted of a business meeting, career opportunities, journalism techniques and a new approach to photography. All agreed it to be most educational. (Especially the talk by the hunk from Athens!! What a bod'!

Rather than coming straight back to Milledgeville, the day was spent window shopping and annoying the bell boys of the Regency Hotel by riding up and down the elevators. The evening was spent in Underground. Miraculously (that's a laugh) the four ran into two of the students from Augusta College. One was the "maitre'd" and the other a foreign student from Norway. There is no need to say the evening was far from the "exciting" events of Georgia College.

So goes the tale of the four brave souls who ventured into Atlanta. The Colonnade does a lot more than just write newspapers. Just as Pattie, Kathy, Suellen, and Cathy!!

Kappa Sig

The brothers of the Lambda Xi Chapter of the Kappa Sigma International Fraternity wish to welcome all new and returning students to the Georgia College campus. We also want to urge each student to look over the Greek life here at GC and become an integral part of a Greek organization.

Kappa Sigma's American founding date was December 10, 1869, at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. However, Kappa Sigma prides itself in being able to trace its ritual and original founding date to A.D. 1400 at the University of Bologna in Bologna, Italy.

Being one of the few international fraternities, Kappa Sigma has 177 chapters across the North American continent.

The Lambda Xi Chapter was founded on March 29, 1974, here on the GC campus. The brothers pride themselves on being the first Greek organization on campus in both a local and national form.

Kappa Sigma represented itself well in the college social life as well as having brothers as members of the student government, baseball and soccer teams, honorary societies, and many other students associations.

In a most unique way, one can see what brotherhood is all about. WE PARTY does not mean just rolling around on the floor, spilling beer, or creating havoc. It means more to us who know what friendship is—a combination of cohesiveness and the ability to communicate enabling us to be one.

I met a guy who said to me
I want to take you home
I asked him, sir, if he loved me true
And laughingly he said,
What's wrong with you?
I met a guy who said to me
I want to save your soul
And told me that his advances would make me whole.
I met a guy who said to me
I don't know what I want.
And unto everyone else
My imaginary love did flaunt.
Now, as I see it something's wrong
When I must decide if a man sings his song.
Liberated they say is what I am, with a sigh,
I ask—where's the man
Who's as liberated as I?

Do you know how much I love you?
Sometimes I think that I don't express it to you.
So often I forget to be loving and sweet—
Its almost like I take for granted that because
You have been here so long, you will always be here.
I guess it seems many times like I don't even care anymore.
I just want to take this time to let you know
That I love you more everyday.
